Theodore Maya has been representing clients and consumers since 2002. Mr. Maya graduated from University of California, Los Angeles, School of Law, where he served as the Editor-in-Chief of the UCLA Law Review. After law school, Mr. Maya was a Law Clerk for the Honorable Gary Allen Feess in the United States District Court, Central District of California. Mr. Maya then worked as a litigation associate in the Los Angeles offices of Kaye Scholer, LLP for approximately eight years where he actively litigated a large variety of complex commercial cases from inception to trial.

Mr. Maya received the 2011 President's Award from Public Counsel for his pro bono efforts. Additional recognitions include being named the "Advocate of the Year" for 2007 by the Consumer Law Project of Public Counsel for successful pro bono representation of a victim of a large-scale equity fraud ring. Mr. Maya also successfully tried several criminal cases before juries as a volunteer City Attorney while participating in the Los Angeles City Attorney's Trial Advocacy Project (TAP). At Ahdoot & Wolfson, PC, Mr. Maya focuses on consumer class actions, complex litigation, and intellectual property matters.
